FOR YOUTH OF PIOCHE.

Trustee Jesse Simmons Assures Record That Work On Proposed School Building Will Soon Be Started—Several Contractors Have Submitted Bids—Original Plans Modified.

Jesse Simmons, member of the Pioche school board, assures the Record that there will not be much more delay in getting work started on the proposed new school building.

The plans drawn several months ago by a Salt Lake firm of architects, however, will not be used, it having been ascertained that the building could not be erected within the appropriation which the board has at its command for school building purposes—$15,000, although the architects were given to understand in the first place that the cost should not exceed the sum stated.

The plans have been considerably modified and while the building now proposed will contain four class rooms it will be only one story high, instead of two stories as originally contemplated.

Several contractors have submitted bids and probably by this time next week the award will have been made.

Mr. Simmons says the new building will be thoroughly modern and members of the school board believe it will fully meet present demands.

QUEER ENGLISH MILK WAGONS.

Gorgeous Floats with Brass Churns and Ben Hur Drivers.

In English towns, a Canadian visitor declares in the Queen, the foreigner runs out to the pavement just to see that glorious chariot called a milk float go by—that gay bit of a two-wheeled thing, white and yellow, white and blue, or red, white and blue, with the shining brass churn erect at the side, the reins coming over the shining brass rail in front, the little square seat inserted at the rear, and the charioteer standing at the back like Ben Hur and driving as much like that hero as—in a modern town where even motor cars are unknown—is practicable.

Then the English milkman who comes on foot, with a modern yoke on his shoulders, and swinging at each side a brass-bound milk pail, in which is a queer little measuring apparatus. Who could wish to have milk delivered in glass bottles, with a paper-sealed top, when he can have it measured at his door into his own jug in this quaintly curious fashion? What do microbes amount to when compared with the joy of the medieval!

Conspiracy Suspected.
"They do say that dyspepsia sharpens men's wits," said the old-time friend.

"I wonder," remarked Mr. Cumrox, slowly, "whether mother and the girls got that new French kitchen gang in the hope of improv'ing my conversation."

The First New Woman.
In the club at tea time an old new woman, lighting a cigarette, said: "We new women are really not so new as we think we are. In the thirteenth century there were lots of us. Can anything 700 years old be new? The University of Bologna had for professor of jurisprudence Movella d'Andria. She was no more new than beautiful—her charms were so overpowering that the trustees made her lecture behind a curtain. When she lectured openly the students, their minds wholly occupied with her beauty, could not attend to what she said. Madonna Manzolina was professor of anatomy, Matilda Tromboni taught languages, and Marie Magnesi held the chair of mathematics. This university was by no means a second-rate one. On the contrary, it was perhaps the leading university of Europe. It had 10,000 students."
